Sidney School Report

To the Citizens and Members of the School Committee:

I herewith submit my seventh annual report of the schools for the year ending Feb. 20, 1925.

Ten schools have been in session during the year, and whereas the locations of these schools have been such as to convene the greatest number of pupils, this number has now increased or diminished in some of the districts so that it will be necessary to make several changes in school locations and some changes in the conveyances for the coming year.

The registration in the several schools at present is as follows:

Thayer's Corner	28 pupils
Clark School	10 pupils
Davenport School	20 pupils
Town Farm School	11 pupils
Lewis School	20 pupils
Bacon's Corner School	20 pupils
Quaker Hill School	13 pupils
West Sidney School	10 pupils
Cowan District	16 pupils
Sawtelle District	18 pupils

At Thayer's Corner there will be about thirty-eight pupils for the spring term. The majority of these and it would seem that this number of pupils for one teacher is too many, in order that efficient work might be done. To transport these pupils to some other school would work a hardship, and cause much dissatisfaction in the district because all of the pupils except one live either at the Corner or south of the school. Therefore the only solution is to provide an assistant for a whole or part of the time.

As you will note the Davenport school numbers about twenty pupils. The majority of these are conveyed from north of the school, and two Webber children are conveyed from the David Allen Field Road. It might be best to close this school and open number 5. The pupils which now attend number 11 could be sent the other way to the Town Farm School without additional expense. By this arrangement district number 5 would convene the Webber children, the Morse child, two at Barrs, one at Houghton's, and the Peck child should she return in the spring. There are a number of extra pupils to enter in the spring at Bacon's Corner, and opening number 5 school would tend to relieve any congestion that might occur at that point. As I have outlined the arrangement of schools, we should employ the minimum number of teachers, use fewer conveyance teams and convene the majority of the pupils.

The school at Thayer's Corner began the fall term August 18th and closed the winter term after twenty weeks of schooling and a week's vacation, January 10th. This was sort of an experiment and it has worked fine in that almost perfect attendance has been maintained, the very cold weather has been avoided, and the cost of fuel and repairs has been reduced to the minimum. I believe it might be well to begin the schools early in all of the districts. We should notice quite a difference in our attendance, and in the cost of fuel.

REPAIRS

Most of the repair work this year has been done at Thayer's Corner School. A new shed with closets was added to the building, the lighting arrangement has been changed to conform to the state standards, and both sides of the roof have been shingled.

This building now needs the foundation repaired, the outside painted, a new floor laid, the entry refinished and the interior cleaned and painted. I should recommend that this work be completed on this building before we take on the repair of some other building, otherwise much of the money spent this year will have been wasted.

If we are to hold to the one-room system, we should put all these buildings in shape to do the regular school work. If we oblige children to attend school we should at least safe-guard them in respect to sanitation, proper heating and lighting, suitable closets and those things which make for decency and morality.

A definite appropriation for the repair of the buildings should be made each year outside of the general repair work, and in this way in a few years our school buildings will meet the state regulations and standards of school buildings.

THE SCHOOL SYSTEM

In speaking of the general progress of the schools, I feel that the Sidney schools compare favorably with those in the surrounding towns. While we have not the advantages in buildings, equipment and choice of experienced and trained teachers that larger centers enjoy, the general work of the teachers and pupils is to be commended.

In some districts more than in others there are parents and citizens who have faith in their school and this spirit of co-operation is a potent factor in making the school a success. This parental interest is manifest in the pupils, wherever it exists and is a source of help and encouragement to the teacher as well. Too often our criticism of the school and of the teacher is destructive and unfounded. It is often well to imagine ones self in the teacher's place and be fair in determining what would be one's success in place of the teacher under similar conditions. It must be remembered that the school and the home are co-operative and that the success or failure of a school depends quite as much on the efforts of parents and citizens as on the teacher and pupils.

At Christmas time all of the schools had exercises and a Christmas Tree. Most of the presents though of small intrinsic value, represented tokens of Christmas cheer, and this was carried into the heart of every child and into most of the homes as well. The work done at Christmas time tends to perpetuate the spirit of Christ, and this is the best kind of moral instruction.

The noon lunch has played quite an important part in our school work during the winter term. Lunches have been served in six of the ten schools.

At Thayer's Corner, the children canned food enough in the fall to last nearly through the winter term. I visited this school during the noon hour. I saw the teacher serve a hot lunch to twenty-five pupils. This lunch had been prepared over the old box stove. Before the meal began the pupils with the teacher bowed their heads and rendered thanks to God for the blessings of life. I was proud of the American school and of the American boy and girl. How many of the homes are doing for their children what this teacher is doing for her pupils?

In regard to these lunches in the schools I am pleased to report that all of the parents seem to favor the work. Not one word of criticism has been made and the parents have been willing and anxious to co-operate in the work and have aided materially in the matter of providing cooked food, vegetables and milk.
